Knox Presbyterian Church, Daysland.

Historical Sketch.

The beginning of Presbyterianism in Daysland dates from the fall of 1905. At a meeting of the Congregation held on August 23rd, 1906, it was decided to proceed with the building of the Church. The Church building, as completed, presents a beautiful and striking appearance both without and within. Knox Church has been the recipient of many handsome gifts from friends and sympathizers outside the members of the Church. Most valuable and worthy of these is the interior decoration, the work of Mr. John Butler. We shall not attempt a detailed description as the work cannot be appreciated without being seen. Suffice to say that the work is all done most beautifully and in excellent taste. It is doubtful if there is another Church in the West so elaborately and artistically decorated. Among other presents to the Congregation is the organ, the gift of Mr. A. J. Jackson, of Toronto, Manager of the Colonial Investment Company. It possesses a full rich tone and has been much admired by all. The bell is the gift of Major Mitchell, of Toronto, and has been been christened, "The Major", in his honor. Although Major Mitchell is too far away to hear the sound of it he will be pleased to know that the bell now adorns the Church tower and its loud clear tone is heard far over the prairie as it calls the congregation to worship each Sabbath day.

The Ladies' Aid, which was formed in October, 1906, has been a splendid band of workers for the Church. The ladies provided the furnishings for the pulpit and the choir platform and for the Pastor's study.

The children, too, have had their part in the work and with the proceeds of their talent money were able to present to the Church the large pulpit Bible.

The Pastor in charge at present is Rev. J. Kemp McKean, who was placed here by the Home Mission Board in the fall of 1912. The congregation are making a gallant effort to reduce the debt upon the Church property. The development of the Town and District although certain, has not been quite so rapid as the original promoters of the Church anticipated. It is satisfactory, however, to know that the Church erected is good not only for the present but for the future and when the burden of debt is removed the congregation will be a valuable asset in Canadian Presbyterianism and the cause of Christ in this great Western Country.

ALBERTA

DAYSLAND

Daysland, Alberta, is situated conveniently near the centre of a large tract of agricultural land comprising about 2,000 square miles, steadily increasing in value as its worth becomes better known.

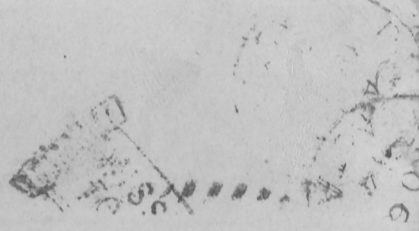

The district is well served by the Canadian Pacific Railway, being on the main line between Winnipeg and Edmonton. As the country develops and products increase, more railways are sure to be built. The Provincial Government offers substantial encouragement to railway co-operations.

Government returns carefully compiled place the average yield for this part of Alberta as: Wheat 25 bushels per acre; Oats 61 bushels per acre; Barley 43 bushels per acre. It should also be noted that the grain here weighs much more than in some countries, Wheat commonly weighing 62 pounds to the bushel and Oats 42 lbs. or more.

Abundance of water and fuel, good grass for pasture and hay, fertile soil, sufficient rainfall and an excellent climate, combine to make the Daysland District ideal for mixed farming. Careful enquiries or an investigation on the ground will substantiate every statement.

Homesteads are no longer available in this district. Raw land may be had from $15.00 to $25.00 an acre, while partially improved farms can be secured from $15.00 to $40.00 an acre. The district is well equipped with schools and churches, the lines of merchandise carried are fully as complete as would be found in many eastern towns of twice the size, and the excellent telephone system installed by the Provincial Government is an unspeakable advantage not only to the town but to many farmers along the rural lines.
